GALLIPOLIS, APRIL 30, 1874.

A Veto—No More Greenbacks.
Congress, in obedience to the demands of the people, and as a support to the great industrial interests of the country, passed a bill increasing, to a limited extent, the currency circulation of the country. The increase of greenbacks over present circulation was about $18,000,000, and the increase of National bank currency, distributed to the West and South, was $6,000,000. The bill received five majority in the Senate, and in the House, a body direct from the people, it passed by a vote of more than two and a half to one. This bill, thus supported by the Representatives of the people, and by both political parties from the West and South, where the needs of this additional currency are most felt, has received the veto of President Grant.

We were in hopes the President would have signed the bill. Not so much because it increased the circulation, although we believe a moderate increase would have been of great value to the business interests of the country, but more for the reason that it would have quieted financial matters. The country has been waiting impatiently for some plan of settlement; business interests were paralyzed for the want of it; and now, just as uncertainty was giving place to hope, the President, by his veto, places the country at sea again. We are not one step further advanced in the direction of settlement than when Congress met. We are, indeed, in a worse condition, for there is a dead lock, the result of a disagreement between the President and Congress.

This action of the President has been productive of much excitement in the country, and the commendations or censures are not governed by political lines, but come wholly from a financial standpoint. Some there are who think this action will disrupt both the present political parties, and call into being in their place new organizations, with contractions and inflation as their distinctive platforms. But such speculations are too early. We must await the action of Congress upon the veto. This will occur this week. It may be that some plan of settlement may be reached which will be satisfactory to both the President and Congress, and thus bring peace and harmony to the discordant elements. For the sake of the country, and its great industrial interests, we hope this solution will be reached.

The State Temperance Convention met at Cincinnati on Wednesday, of last week, and was in session two days. The Convention was a grand affair. There were over five hundred delegates present on the first day, representing one hundred and twenty-five towns and villages. Mrs. Manly, of Akron, was elected President, and one Vice-President was appointed from each Congressional District. Mrs. Peabody, of Portsmouth, representing the Eleventh. One of our delegates, Mrs. J. S. Wilson, was a member of the Committee on Memorial. Mother Stewart was present with the Convention, and addressed the body. On the grand parade there were four hundred and sixty in the line, and it took twenty minutes for them to pass a certain point. Several attempts were made to belittle and deride their efforts by those in the whiskey interest. During the deliberations a Presbyterian lady remarked that she represented a League of 250 members, and they wanted no compromise on this question. Much talk was indulged in; committees waited upon the Constitutional Convention, and adjourned sine die.

That a large proportion of the American people believe it essential to the interest of the country to increase the volume of paper money, cannot be denied.—Cincinnati Gazette.

This being true, Gen. Grant, by his veto of the inflation bill, must have gone back on his promise to have no policy to enforce against the sentiment of the people.

The Judicial Article has at last been adopted by the Constitutional Convention. It has a provision by which drunkenness on the bench, or during the term of Court, works vacation of office. In the first election of Supreme Judges the proportionate plan of voting shall apply, no voter to vote for more than three candidates.

Late speculations from Washington state that efforts are in progress trying to bring the opposing elements on financial matters to gether upon a bill which, while it will give additional currency and banking facilities, will yet have such guards as will induce the President to sign it.

Senator Thurman, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, laughed outright when the President's veto was read.

Court Report.

The April term of the Court of Common Pleas commenced in this city on Monday, Judge Platts on the bench. The Grand Jury was impaneled and sworn. The jury is the same as that published by us a few weeks since, except FRANK L. CARL, who failed to appear, and WM. WADDELL was appointed in his place. Mr. AUGUSTUS J. CARTER, of Perry township, is foreman. Twenty-five witnesses have been sworn to go before the Grand Jury. Its labors will probably not be concluded before Friday.

The case of Andrew J. Wright vs. James Jones and Wm. Williams was settled, costs paid, and no record made.

The case of Fannie Stewart vs. Arthur Stewart, for divorce, was dismissed by plaintiff.

The case of Elizabeth Hutchinson vs. Geo. Betz, to set aside a deed, was heard by the Court.

The following cases were continued under former order: H. W. Gates' executrix vs. W. Wallace Gates; Henry Ecker vs. Jacob Hively and wife; and Charles Crouzet vs. Jno. Smeltzer and others; Emily F. Vance vs. Chas. W. Gee and others.

The following are continuances: Thos. Sims & Co. vs. Robert F. Hughes; Jeremiah Coats vs. Thomas Fox and Francis Fee; Thomas M. Thomas vs. Beman & Jones; John A. Halley vs. Cornelius Halley and others; G. D. Sims vs. Missouri Sims; Thos. CORRESPONDENCE.

For the Gallipolis Journal.

DEAR JOURNALIST:—A few items of news from here may interest some one. We have had it wet, and now up the creeks; the low bottoms on Kyger are under water, doing some damage to grass, wheat and potatoes. Wheat and grass it does not damage much until after it joints. Potatoes it will destroy about as far as it overflows.

Wheat and grass look well, above an average of wheat sown; no corn planted of any note; fruit prospect good; been unfavorable for farmers for two weeks; prospect for idlers poor; road petitions numerous.

The Doctor says he has transferred his fishing interest to his son, C. C. BARTON, who knows the lick it's done with. On Saturday morning he took out a mud cat that kicked the beam at 95 pounds. "Pretty good sucker."

Our summer schools are now in session, at prices to teachers, (female) ranging from fifty to sixty dollars per quarter.

Some effort making to form a Grange somewhere about the village. I am informed they have the requisite number enrolled, and are waiting the action of some of the adjacent Granges. "Pitch in boys, 'spect you'll get things orful cheap."

The Methodist quarterly meeting commences in Addison week from Friday.

We have been quite temperate in regard to the Temperance crusade; very little said and nothing done in that line. Some talk in favor of license in the new Constitution.

But, Mr. Editor, we have a Farmers' and Mechanics' Club, organized with over twenty members, who, I am rejoiced to say, take a lively interest. We organized the 20th of March, with the following officers: President, Capt. SAM'L. ROTHGERS, Vice President, E. J. BARNY; Secretary, C. C. BARTON; Corresponding Secretary, D. R. S. SHAFER; Treasurer, D. R. S. SHAFER; Sergeant-at-Arms, C. C. PAULEY.

Any one wishing any information from us, can address either of the Secretaries of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Club of Addison. More anon. R. S.

Railroad.
From fifty to sixty hands are employed on the G. McArthur & C. R. R., and over a mile of the grading is finished below Vinton Furnace Road, but all the subscribers were exhausted, and hands could not be paid. The report is untrue, but of course it has caused some uneasiness among some of the hands. We learn that arrangements are now being made to pay them off in full.—Vinton Record, 23d.

DAPPER JIM.—A young man of Gallipolis showed us a ring which 109 ladies had worn for longer or shorter time within the last two years. That would have reduced an ordinary man down to a living skeleton.—Ironton Journal.

LEMASTERS—BOWERS.—At the Probate Judge's office, on Tuesday, by Samuel Kerr, J. P., in his usual happy style, which is replete with poetical expression, zephyrs and rose leaves, in the presence of divers persons, all wishing to hold their peace hereafter, Mr. NOAH F. LEMASTERS and Miss JULIA A. BOWERS.

Louisiana and a portion of Mississippi are in a terrible condition from the overflow of the river. One-third of the State of Louisiana and several of the valleys of Mississippi are under water. Hundreds of plantations will make no cotton or sugar this year. Men, women and children are dying of starvation in the midst of the waters which shut out food and friends. Gen. Grant has ordered large supplies of army rations to be distributed to sufferers. The accounts show a terrible state of affairs.

The inflation Senators in Congress, says the correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, insist that they do not intend to raise any personal issue with Gen. Grant, because of the veto, but to expect to work with him in the party, though upon the financial question they do not yield their convictions.

An unprecedented snow storm visited portions of the Eastern States on Saturday. In places in Vermont it drifted to the depth of ten feet.

An English writer, Dr. T. L. Nichols, in a work "How to Behave," says: "In the rudest regions of America, when not only a lady, but any woman, enters a railway carriage, some man rises to give her a seat. On a Mississippi steamboat no man is allowed to sit down at the table until every woman is seated. Front seats at public entertainments are the same price as back ones, but they are 'reserved for ladies,' and when all passengers pay the same price, the most elegant carriages are, by common consent, also reserved for ladies—that is, for all females and their attendants. The same rule prevails in hotels and everywhere. More deference is shown to women, as women, in America, than in any country in the world."

NARROW GAUGE.—The Columbus Journal of April 25th, says:

A few gentlemen interested in the construction of a narrow gauge railroad from this city to the coal regions of Jackson, Meigs and other counties, have been in informal consultation in this city. They agreed on a gauge of three feet.

An auctioneer in Burlington, Vt., got a bid of only 37 1/2 cents for an elegant family Bible. "What is the trouble with this town?" said he. A wag responded, "Squire don't you know that this city has just gone Democratic?"
